Multi-Family Cabinetry That's American-Made

American-Made. For us, these simple words have been a guiding principle and responsibility since 1946. As a family-owned and operated company, we strive to leave a legacy that includes more than our expertly-crafted cabinets:

American manufacturing jobs: We employ nearly 200 American workers at our three manufacturing facilities in Parsons and Cherryvale, Kansas, guaranteeing that economic opportunity remains in the U.S., and that our communities continue to prosper.

American-made materials: We source lumber from American suppliers who harvest in Pennsylvania, Michigan, and Tennessee. We also partner with fellow American companies: Gemini Coatings and Georgia Pacific for our finishing products and materials.

Made with Americans in mind: International manufacturing involves major safety and quality risks as well as concerns over whether the product was ethically made. Certified by the KCMA (Kitchen Cabinet Manufacturers Association), Grandview Cabinetry follows national regulations and environmental standards when it comes to factory emissions, wood harvesting, and more.
